Education ministry, Australia launch women's leadership programme

Times Reporters

The Ministry of Education and Sports, with support from Australia through the BEQUAL programme, has launched the Women In Leadership scheme.

The programme will provide training and professional development support for women in leadership positions and mass organisation members.

Director General of the ministry's Personnel Department, Dr Toudavanh Normeungsean, chaired a meeting about the programme in Vientiane province last week.

The programme is structured around three complementary components that together support both individual and institutional change. The first component is Building Leadership Capability, which provides participants with a personal learning journey focused on leadership development, understanding gender equality, tools for driving equitable change, communication, lifelong learning, and soft skills.

This component is intended not only to strengthen technical and interpersonal skills, but also

education ministry's

to create space for reflection, peer learning, coaching, and the development of individual gender equality, disability, and social inclusion (GEDSI) action plans.

Second, the Women In Leadership programme supports GEDSI integration in the workplace through a Training of Trainers approach.

Participants will be co-facilitators, delivering information sessions and workshops with senior leaders and staff across the education ministry to promote GEDSI mainstreaming in practice.

Third, the programme includes education ministry institutional strengthening, which focuses on translating learning into practical workplace action.

Through the roll-out of the Gender Equality Management (GEM) tool, participants will be able to identify which aspects of workplace systems, policies and practices need to be improved to create a more enabling environment for women's advancement.

Dr Toudavanh said the Women In Leadership programme will provide a pathway for women to grow as leaders while also contributing to more gender-equitable and inclusive institutions within the Ministry of Education and Sports.

Director of the Laos-India Entrepreneurship Development Centre and President of the Lao Women's Union at the Ministry of Education and Sports, Ms Soutsaychai Douangsavanh, said "The programme will provide an opportunity for Lao Women's Union committee members across the education ministry to develop their leadership skills and learn from each other."

"When men and women are equally supported to achieve their professional goals, everyone benefits through enhanced teamwork, increased productivity, and more positive work environments," she added.

Ministry of Education and Sports and Australia launch Women In leadership Program

POSTED ON 19 MAY 2026

A core group of 19 Lao Women's Union (LWU) committee members from across MoES will participate in activities across three components: building leadership capability, GESDI integration in the workplace, and MoES institutional strengthening

The program will provide training and professional development support for women in leadership positions and mass organization members

On 18-20 May 2026 at Naparkkaung Meeting Room, Thoulakom District, Vientiane Province, the Ministry of Education and Sports of Lao PDR (MoES), with support from Australia through the BEQUAL program, has launched the Women In Leadership Program (WIL). Dr. Toulavanh Norneungsean, Director General of Personnel Department chaired this first training and there are around 30 participants.

The WIL Program is structured around three complementary components that together support both individual and institutional change. The first component is Building Leadership Capability, which provides participants with a personal learning journey focused on leadership development, understanding gender equality, tools for driving equitable change, communication, lifelong learning, and soft skills. This component is intended not only to strengthen technical and interpersonal skills, but also to create space for reflection, peer learning, coaching, and the development of individual gender equality, disability and social inclusion (GESDI) action plans.

Second, the WIL program supports GESDI integration in the workplace through a Training of Trainers approach. WIL participants will be co-facilitators, delivering information sessions and workshops with senior leaders and staff across MoES to promote GESDI mainstreaming in practice.

Third, the program includes MoES institutional strengthening, which focuses on translating learning into practical workplace action. Participants will pilot a Gender Equality Management (GEM) self-assessment tool in their workplace as well as develop and deliver GESDI projects. Through the roll-out of the GEM tool participants will be able to identify which aspects of workplace systems, policies and practices need to be improved to create a more enabling environment for women's advancement.

Dr. Toulavanh Norneungsean, Director General of the Department of Organisation and Personnel chaired the first workshop of MoES' Women in Leadership Program

Ms. Soutsaychai Douangsavanh President of the Lao Women's Union (LWU) in MoES explains that the Women in Leadership (WIL) Program will provide an opportunity for LWU Committee members across MoES to develop their leadership skills

A core group of 19 Lao Women's Union (LWU) committee members from across MoES will participate in activities across all three components. A further 75 LWU members will support this core group's professional development and participate in related gender equality awareness raising and training activities.

Dr. Toulavanh Norneungsean explained that the WIL Program will provide a pathway for women to grow as leaders while also contributing to more gender-equitable and inclusive institutions within MoES.

Ms. Soutsaychai Douangsavanh, Director of Lao-India Entrepreneurship Development Center and President of LWU, MoES said "the WIL Program will provide an opportunity for LWU Committee members across MoES to develop their leadership skills and learn from each other. When men and women are equally supported to achieve their professional goals, everyone benefits through enhanced teamwork, increased productivity and more positive work environments".
